Activate XON..Q: Rails 5 ActiveRecord 4.2 - Can't set non-null field to the current user I have an app where a user can manage other users. User does not have a dedicated model, but he/she can be associated with another user (as another column of the User table). There are many different relationships (one-to-many, many-to-many, one-to-one, one-to-one-one, etc) and I'm trying to find the closest association. I've tried using has_one and belongs_to association with no success. For example, user X can be associated with user Y and I need to find the closest relationship (association) between X and Y. def update_preferance user = User.find_by(user_id: params[:id]) # Can't set non-null field to the current user user.preferences.build(preferance_type: params[:preferance_type], value: params[:preferance_value], user_id: current_user.id) # Can't set the default value of the preference to the current user user.preferences.build(preferance_type: params[:preferance_type], value: params[:preferance_value], user_id: current_user.id) if user.save logger.info "Saved the user pref" redirect_to user_preferences_path else logger.info 595f342e71
