Chronic hyperammonemic encephalopathy (CHE), the long-term neurological sequel of chronic urea cycle disorders, is characterized by cognitive and psychiatric impairments, seizures, and stroke. Epilepsy, a defining feature of CHE, may account for up to half of the strokes that occur in patients with this syndrome. The ACLU.org, the association of lawyers in the United States of America, has published several critical letters sent to Verizon and AT&T. On Monday (October 22nd), the American Civil Liberties Union published several critical letters sent to Verizon and AT&T. These letters were sent by the United States Department of Justice to the two telecommunications companies to request they unlock the devices of customers under warrant. In all these letters, the United States Attorney of the Southern District of New York has requested the two companies unlock the devices of their customers under a specific warrant issued by the District Court of the Southern District of New York. The letters have been signed by Assistant US Attorney Karen E. Rominger. Below are the letters: Letter to Verizon Communications, Inc. Letter to AT&T Inc. AT&T's legal representation stated that they would make the requested data access and the ability to unlock the devices of AT&T customers available to the government. The Washington Post, on Monday (October 22nd), reported that the two companies will refuse to grant the FBI access to the data stored on the targeted devices. The company that would receive the unlocked devices from the government would be able to resell the data, as the information is under no obligation to retain such data by the government. Below are the The Washington Post's comments: Verizon: According to The Washington Post, Verizon is refusing to comply with the U.S. government's demand for access to the text messages of at least 5,900 of its customers. The decision to deny the Justice Department's request is effective immediately, and it is the first time the company has legally resisted such a request. AT&T: The company is currently locked out of several of the accounts of those who support the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, or ISIS. According to Vox, AT&T's CEO Randall Stephenson has said that AT&T has the ability to obtain the data of the accounts of their customer, but would never do so without a subpoena. "The company has not uncovered any security breaches of accounts that have occurred since 2015, and there's no evidence
